State lab eyeing oyster reef to ring deep hole

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A proposal to encircle the deep hole offshore from Buccaneer State Park with an artificial oyster reef is being pursued by Mayor John Longo of Waveland and personnel from the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory.

The Ocean Springs laboratory's personnel this week plan to inspect waterbottoms around the deep hole to evaluate the area's suitability for such a reef.

The mayor and laboratory officials hope the sharp oyster shells will deter people from venturing into the treacherous underwater cavity which has claimed 25 lives.

Bill Demoran, head of the lab's fisheries management section, said Tuesday in Ocean Springs, "We're in the talking stage right now, but we hope to do something this week."

"The reef would be a deterrent. It's better for people to have cut feet than loose lives," Demoran stated regarding the jagged shellfish.

The section head reported it would be too costly to completely fill the hole with reef-forming shell.

"Hopefully the hole lies in a suitable waterbottom area of mud and sand," Demoran said.

He reported the proposed reef would serve three purposes—deter swimmers, provide an oyster cultivation area and improve sport fishing.

Longo Tuesday also stated that a 'few cut feet' would be much better than a loss of another life and the reef would improve fishing and the oyster industry.

The hole, located about 1,500 feet from the park and Gulfside Assembly Center, is a crater-like cavity 500 feet by 800 feet in size which was apparently created in a 1966 Corps' dredging project forming a sand beach from Ballantine Street in Bay St. Louis to Bayou Cadet.

Officials report some 25 people have drowned in the hole during the last few years with the underwater crater claiming its latest victim, a Slidell man, May 31.

The sand berm was designed by the Corps to prevent Beach Boulevard from eroding due to storm wave action.

A quicksand mud bottom was added to the hole in 1979 when spoils from a nearby Bayou Cadet dredging operation were dumped in an attempt to fill the cavity, apparently making the hole more dangerous than it was previously.

Warning signs have also been placed on the beach by the City of Waveland, and the Hancock County Civil Defense installed markers offshore around the deadly hole itself.

The county is now facing almost $8 million in liable suits filed by survivors of eight deep hole drowning victims. Those cases will be tried in September's session of U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Mississippi in Biloxi.

Bay engineer contends mineral leases based on controversial map

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

An expert witness in an ongoing property ownership trial, pitting Hancock County land owners against the State of Mississippi, reported that controversial wetlands maps were utilized to formulate oil and gas lease acreage for the state.

The state contends the Mississippi Marine Resources Council maps do not indicate the boundary line between state and private land ownership.

But Dr. Michael Smith, president of the Bay St. Louis engineering firm Advanced Developments Inc., testified this week that the state determined lease acreage from the maps.

The Gulfport trial primarily involves Cinque Bambini Partnership, located at Holly Bluff in Hancock County, which is suing the state to establish ownership of some 600 acres of land outlined as wetland areas in a map prepared by MMRC in the early 1970's.

The map was designed to illustrate the mean high tide mark which may indicate state ownership lines.

A statewide interpretation of the public trust doctrine, derived from English common law, may also be determined through the court action. This doctrine dictates that the state owns, in trust for the public, the sea along its shores and extending up rivers and bays to the mean high water mark.

An air conditioning failure in Hancock County's Bay St. Louis Courthouse prompted a move of the Chancery Court trial to Harrison County's Gulfport Courthouse.

Plaintiffs in the suit include Lydia and Carroll Allen, owners of one-half the mineral rights of the Bambini property; Harry Kellerher, a neigh-

Fleet blessing, rodeo highlight 4th weekend

By BRENT MACEY

Blessing of the fleet in Bayou Cadet and the Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo in Gulfport will highlight this week's holiday events.

The blessing is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. Saturday with trophies and prizes being awarded to winning boats.

A $1 shrimp plate dinner, beverages and other activities will be available to those that attend.

The blessing is dedicated this year to John Santalla Jr., a six-month-old New Year's baby who has remained in Gulfport Memorial Hospital since birth due to a rare lung disease.

Money raised through the festivities will be used to help buy oxygen equipment needed to bring Johnny home.

A party on beach property adjoining the American Legion pier at the end of Washington Street in Bay St. Louis is scheduled July 4, by owners of Dan B's, a Bay St. Louis lounge.

The contestants will be judged on custome, speed and quality of painting on a four-by-five foot replica fence of rough-cut oak along the Mississippi Riverfront in downtown Hannibal. The event Sunday is dedicated to the memory of Mark Twain. Carver is son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Carver Jr. and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Rene Bermond, all of Bay St. Louis. Public transportation gets little support

By BRENT MACEY

Representatives of the Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District found very little support for public transportation in Hancock County during a meeting in the county courthouse Tuesday.

The meeting was designed to hear public imput on the subject, but only Jean Bell of the Hancock County Information and Referral and Theresa James of the county's Retired Senior Volunteer Program were present to hear the proposals.

The I&R currently owns and operates a van for senior citizens. The RSVP has a van and a station wagon.

Both Bell and James said the county could use an additional station wagon for their programs.

Both county organizations currently transport those citizens 60 years of age or older.

The representatives explained adding a van or station wagon is a possibiltiy. In addition, they stated the vehicles could be used to transport the general public, regardless of age.

Busses for the county could also be available if there were a need for them.

Bennett denies police administrative shift

By BRENT MACEY

Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett Wednesday denied reports he is planning a top fire and police administrative shakeup.

'Positively no' was the mayor's answer to reports received this week by The Sea Coast Echo that a high-level realignment of the fire and police leadership is being planned by city hall.

"You have heard more than I have," Bennett said when asked about reports a Hattiesburg detective has been interviewed for a position either as chief or assistant chief of the Bay Police Department.

"There will be no changes," Bennett confirmed.

Reports Bay Chief of Police Douglas Williams would be promoted to a supervisory position over both the city's police and fire departments as part of the proposed realignment were also dismissed by the mayor.

Bennett also denied any negotiations are being conducted to fill an assistant chief of police position.

"There has not been an assistant police chief for quite some time, and I am not trying or negotiating to have that position filled," Bennett said.

He stated the department is always looking for 'new blood' and is required by law to accept applications for all types of positions.

Earth group sponsors symposium

The Earth Resources Laboratory of NASA's National Space Technology Laboratories (NSTL) sponsored its second Landsat-Geobased Information System Symposium this week at the Biloxi Hilton.

Participants included NSTL personnel, representatives of Federal, state and local governmental agencies and private industry.

A poster session Monday was followed by the two-day symposium sessions.

NSTL's Earth Resources Laboratory is responsible for transferring remote sensing technology to state and local governments in 17 southeastern and south central states.

According to NSTL officials, the symposium was designed to provide an opportunity for users of Landsat satellite data to exchange information on operational applications and for NASA and industry representatives to report on new remote sensing technology.

The symposium was divided into three sessions.

The first session dealt with operational applications of remotely sensed data in the areas of wildlife habitat inventories; irrigated lands identification and monitoring; statewide natural resources management; and forest resource inventory and management applications.

The topic of the second session was "New Remote Sensing Techniques and Applications." Panel members discussed applications for park resource management, agriculture and county data base applications, among other uses.

The final session concentrated on new system technologies which will look into the future of satellite remote sensing, including an overview of NOAA's Operational Landsat Remote Sensing Program.

Thousands of visitors are expected to arrive at the coast for the blessing, rodeo and holiday festivities.

Police caution citizens not to drive and drink and to be careful while driving in the heavy holiday traffic.

Bay St. Louis Patrolman Richard Trudell urges all people using fire crackers to use caution and judgement.

Fire crackers are only legal 10 days prior to the holiday until midnight of July 4.

Divorce brings increased financial responsibility

Divorce usually means increased financial responsibility for the wife including the cost of raising children and paying taxes.

Divorce may affect her Social Security, too.

A divorce usually cuts the wife's income by at least 50 percent. "When the terms of a financial agreement are being drawn up, consider carefully the cost of raising a child," advises Mrs. Norine Barnes, area consumer management specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Annual costs rise with the age of the child. Total costs are higher for boys than for girls, primarily because transportation costs are higher for teen-age boys and are not offset for girls in other categories.

"The wife may need more education or training to qualify her for the job market. This added expense should be considered in the terms of the agreement," Mrs. Barnes says.

If alimony is awarded to the wife, it must be included in her income for federal and state income tax purposes. It is deductible for the spouse who pays it, however.

"Child support is an obligation of the parents and only relieves the tax burden of a parent if a child qualifies as a dependent," Mrs. Barnes explains. "Only one parent can claim a child as a dependent, and it is usually the parent who pays more than 50 percent of the child's support."

A wife can get benefits when her ex-husband starts collecting retirement or disability payments if she is 62 or older and was married to him at least 10 years.

She also may get payments if her ex-husband dies, provided she is 60 or older (50, if she is disabled) and they were married 10 years or longer. "If young children are involved, they may be entitled to benefits, too," Mrs. Barnes says.

Williams said he had heard nothing of the matter until Bennett called him Wednesday and asked Williams what he had been hearing on the matter.

When asked how he felt about being supervisor of the departments, Williams laughed and stated, "That has made my day."

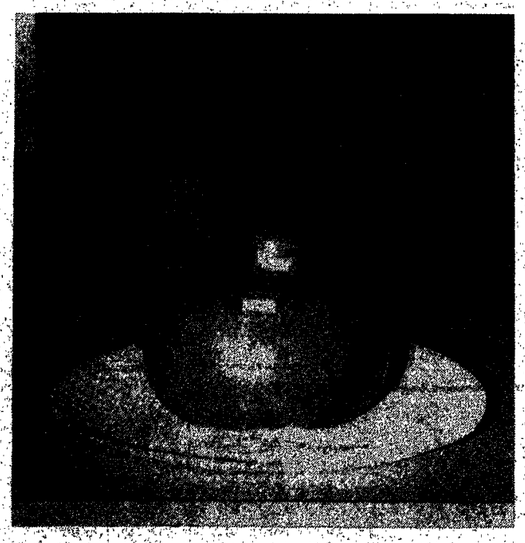

He stated, "I'm just as happy in this position as any other position and I don't think I need any more responsibilties."

Williams stated his job is 'very hectic' and added the greatest difficulties revolve around 'trying to please everybody.'

Bay St. Louis Fire Chief Andrew Lizana stated he has heard rumors of changes in the police department 'during the city elections' and again Tuesday.

Lizana said the information Tuesday came from a 'fellow who is fairly reliaible,' but stated 'I have heard so many tales it's hard to believe if it is the truth.'

Lizana stated he heard Williams might be shifted into a position as 'advisor' to the departments.

the representatives stated.

Mark Damlougi, a representative of the district, explained some $1.8 million in federal money has been allocated to the state to increase public transportation.

He said he believes the southern district will receive the largest allocation of that money because 'the southern 15 counties represent the highest population rates in the state.'

Some $24,399 has been allocated to the southern district to develop the planning stage of the operation, he said, and added that the additional money will not be given out until the plan is completed.

The deadline to complete the plan and submit it to the state for analysis is Sept. 30. Damlougi explained the district will gather information from the different counties, come up with alternatives, and submit a final report to the state for approval before that date.

He explained the state must accept the proposals before the counties can apply for the funds.

The information gathering process was inhibited Tuesday however, due to the lack of attendence at the meeting.

Questions as to the number of vehicles owned by the county school district currently used to transport retarded children to Harrison County arose. Questions concerning the exact numbers of vehicles being used by the Senior Citizen Title XX Program, the Head Start Program, and the Senior Aid Program were also left unanswered.

In addition, the needs, if any, for increased transportation of citizens in the Kiln, Pearlington, Necaise Crossing, and other areas in the county, remainded undetermined.

Nancy White, the other representative of the district at the meeting, stated she may have to contact the county supervisors to discuss exactly what needs exist in the more rural areas of the county.

The possibility of extending programs, currently centered in Bay St. Louis, was also discussed.

Finding qualified drivers for the program was also discussed. Nothing was resolved.

Damlougi explained that another public hearing will be scheduled in Hancock County sometime in September.

He explained more information will be collected by that second meeting, including costs for vehicles needed in Hancock County.

Both Damlougi and White agreed that more research will have to be gathered in Hancock County before that time.

The two stated that this county showed the poorest citizen turn-out in comparison to 13 other southern counties which they have already visited.

Phone company eyes climber safety

South Central Bell recently completed a week long Accident Prevention Clinic with 136 telephone management people attending during which extensive hands-on demonstrations were presented in an effort to eliminate the causes of accidents to telephone employees.

"It was a most impressive and in depth workshop on the many tools and work situations encountered daily by telephone people who must perform their work efficiently and safely each and every day," according to Franklin Kyle, district manager for South Central Bell.

"One problem that the public can help us with is not to place signs on telephone poles. This creates a work hazard for our employees who must climb these poles," Kyle said.

"A small tack or staple can cause our employees climbing hooks to 'cut out' and cause a fall that could result in serious injury. We urge everyone to help us by not placing signs on the poles," he continued.

"Long after the signs are gone, the staples, tacks or nails remain and they are difficult for our employees to see when climbing," Kyle said.

"Liars when they speak the truth are not believed."

Bits 'n pieces

We think it is great for us to receive letters complimenting Waveland residents all the way from Bruckberg, West Germany.

The letter is a result of a soccer team from Bruckberg visiting Waveland and while here being served a dinner by the Senior Citizens and American Legion Post No. 77 Auxiliary.

A copy of the letter is in the 'Letters to the Editor' on this page.

The comparison with larger cities is very interesting with Waveland's visit being noted as the 'most enjoyable one.'

Waveland has always been known as the 'Hospitality City' and we feel that all residents of the wonderful city should be congratulated.

We ran into the Travis Hensley family Sunday at church. They were home on a short visit before returning many miles from Bay St. Louis.

The Hensley's are going to do another tour at Kwajalein in the Marshall Islands. Daughter Susan attends Ole Miss and will be a sophomore this fall.

Travis and Sue seem to have adopted the island living very well and both said to tell their freinds hello. Daughter Helen will be in the eighth grade at Kwajalein.

We were glad to see the Hensley's and hope they return to Bay St. Louis real soon.

The Annual Nereids fund raiser will be held Friday night, St. Clare's Parish Hall at 7 p.m.

As most of you know, the ladies of Nereids were the ones to get Hancock Countians re-interested in Mardi Gras parades when they formed several years ago.

The fund raiser will be for adults only, and we hope many of you will attend this function as proceeds are to be used by the carnival krewe for their Mardi Gras parade next year.

The ladies really enjoy bringing Mardi Gras to us when they parade the streets of Waveland.

We hope everyone will really enjoy the event this Friday might.

This is just a reminder about the new Bay St. Louis City Council taking office on Friday at 10:30 a.m.

The mayor and councilmen have planned a reception with refreshments by a catering service paid for by the mayor and councilmen.

Those scheduled to appear on the program are Judge J. Ruble Griffin to swear-in the mayor and councilmen; Bishop Joseph Howze; a Keesler Air Force band, and other celebrities, according to a city hall spokesman. A flag raising ceremony will be conducted by Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139.

This weekend is filled with events. In addition to those mentioned above we also have the annual Blessing of the Fleet to be held Saturday.

The event co-sponsored by Gulf Fishermen, Inc. and the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce will begin at Bayou Caddy at 2 p.m. on July 4th.

Boiled shrimp will be for sale in addition to refreshments, we are told. Trophies for the event are being presented by the Hancock Chamber of Commerce and the seafood by Gulf Fishermen members.

The event will be a benefit for six-month-old John Santalla Jr., who has been hospitalized since birth.

We hope to see you at the Blessing of the Fleet.

It will be Fair time at St. Rose DeLima Catholic Church Saturday and Sunday.

A softball tournament, special home cooking, booths, cakes and all types of goodies in store at the annual event.

The Fair will be held on the school gounds across from St. Rose DeLima's church on Necaise Avenue, Bay St. Louis.

We hope everyone will stop by and visit the fair and enjoy themselves Saturday and Sunday.

We saw an interesting public service announcement on television the other night.

Highway Commissioner Bob Joiner reports that the State of Mississippi spends over $500,000 each year on highways for litter pickup.

This does not include what the counties and municipalities spend all over the state, so we are sure the figure is well over $1 million.

This is a big waste of money, and its your money and our money being spent on unnecessary work, which is necessary because of our carelessness.

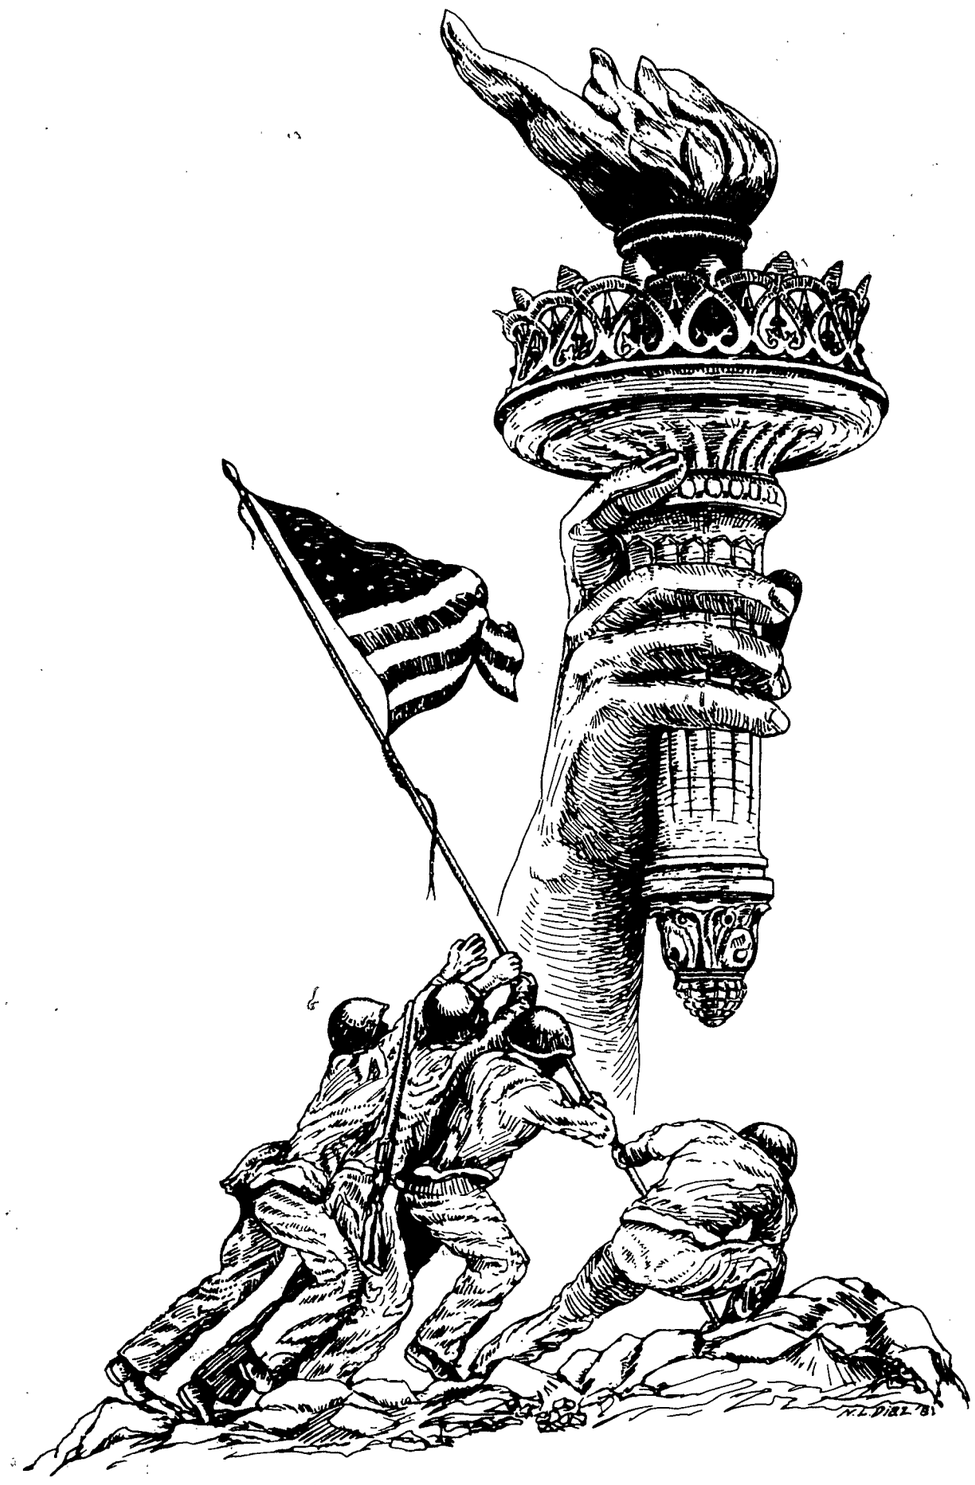

Please use a litter bag in your car, do not throw paper and drink containers on our highways and roadways, only you can help.

Every piece of litter not thrown on highways, is taxpayers' money saved.

If you need a litter bag the financial institutions in Hancock County and selected business have them available and free. They are sponsored by the clean-up committee of the Hancock Chamber of Commerce and can also be gotten from the Chamber's office.

Please, do your part, help us have a clean county.

Dear Mr. Editor:

We have received the papers from the Sea Coast Echo, brought to us by Mr. and Mrs. Shea. A paper was distributed to each soccer player, it was more than appreciated.

The dinner prepared by Waveland residents, Senior Citizens and the Post's Women's Auxiliary held at the American Legion Post 77 in Waveland, truly the "Hospitality Post of the Coast," was one of the highlights of our trip to America.

We played our soccer games in Atlanta, Detroit and Buffalo.

We won three games and lost one by the score of 1:2. We visited larger cities but the hispitality of your community will always be remembered.

All the members of our soccer team from Bruckberg want to thank again all the people who made their visit a most enjoyable one.

On Behalf of us all in the Sport Club Bruckberg, Western Germany, Soccer Division,

Traveling hospital administrator credits HGH with life-saving care

June 30, 1981
Sea Coast Echo

Dear Editor,

As a recent patient of Hancock General Hospital I wish to publicly acknowledge my appreciation to the dedicated staff of Hancock General who saved my life and rendered excellent medical attention during my two week hospitalization.

I was aboard a Greyhound bus enroute from New Orleans to Gulfport to join my family when I began to experience chest pains at about Waveland.

By the time the bus arrived in Bay St. Louis I was experiencing severe chest pains extending into my arm and neck.

The agent at the bus station seeing my distress immediately called an ambulance.

The ambulance arrived promptly in a matter of minutes but, I must also gratefully acknowledge the assistance of a woman whose name I do not know who offered to take me to the hospital.

Because the ambulance arrived so quickly I did not need her assistance but, I am none the less grateful for her gesture of kindness.

Once at the hsopital the entire medical staff (including nurses) was alert, attentive, efficient, and extremly professional.

I found myself in a condtition and a situation which at the very least was unexpected and grightening.

But the care that I received from the staff, especially my attending physicians, Doctors Rutherford and Hill and the superb ICU nursing staff not only healed my physical illness but did wonders for my mental and emotional well being.

I must add that I speak not only as a patient but, as hospital administrator who views hospital situations with a trained eye.

I have spent the last twelve years in hsopital administration and eight of those years as the executive director of several of this country's largest hospital intituttions.

The excellent staff at Hancock General is one that any community or hospital administrator should be proud of.

Citizen abhors city's move against delinquent accounts after election

Sea Coast Echo
To the Editor

Dear Sir:

I am writing this out of concern for the citizens of Bay St. Louis.

Why is it after the election, the city council decides to turn off everyone's gas and water who is behind but who is trying to pay some every chance they get.

I would like for the city council to live off of Social Security for two months.

What if the city council made just $245 a month with out food stamps?

What can poor people do on $245 a month?

The people of Bay St. Louis pay the city council while they sit up in a air-contioned office while the poor folks are out working to pay their bills.

Jefferson urged July 4th be annual renewal of international dedication to rights of man

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, entitled 'An Expression Of The American Mind' by David Tucker, a Jefferson Scholar and Instructor in History at the University of Chicago, is furnished to The Sea Coast Echo by Public Research, Syndicated of Clarement, Calif.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

These words, of course, are from the American Declaration of Independence, the 205th anniversary of which we celebrate this July 4.

Thomas Jefferson once described these words and the Declaration of Independence itself as an expression of the American Mind.

Having composed the Declaration, Jefferson devoted the remaining years of his life to explaining these self-evident truths and drawing out their consequences for the experiment in self-government that he and his compatriots had begun.

It is a fitting occasion to reflect upon Jefferson's life's work and his ideas, which remain in their essence an expression of the American mind today.

All of Jefferson's political principles flowed from the fundamental fact, the "self-evident truth," of human equality.

Because men were equal, no man could claim by nature or by the grace of God any rightful power over any other man.

Because men were created equal, therefore, they were created free. "The God who gave us life, gave us liberty at the same time," wrote Jefferson.

Furthermore, because no man had a natural right to rule over his equals, government could be justly established only if men agreed to establish it.

As Jefferson wrote in the Declaration, "Governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

Men could form various kinds of government through consent, but Jefferson had no doubt about which was the best form.

As he wrote, "From the moment that to preserve our rights a change of government became necessary, no doubt could be entertained that a republican form was the most consonant with reason, with rights, with the freedom of man."

What is the defining characteristic of republican government? "The first principle of republicanism," wrote Jefferson, is that majority rule "is the fundamental law of every society of individuals of equal rights."

"This law once disregarded," he warned, "no other remains but that of force."

Equality, freedom, consent, majority rule — these were the elements of Jefferson's understanding of self-government.

"Every man and every body of men on earth possess the right of self-government. They receive it with their being from the hand of nature."

Nevertheless, Jefferson understood that men did not automatically know how to exercise their right of self-government. "The qualifications for self-government in society are not innate. They are the reward of habit and long training."

If men were to respect the rights of others, they had first to learn to subdue their own selfish passions. This was an extraordinary demand and would indeed take habituation and training if men were to comply with it.

But every man had to learn to govern his passions, if a nation's self-government were to survive. Even majority rule, "the fundamental law" of republicanism, was not a law unto itself.

In his first inaugural Jefferson spoke of the "sacred principle, that will, to be rightful, must be reasonable; that the minority possess their equal rights, which equal laws must protect."

Self-government meant ruling those passions that would otherwise lead men to ignore the rights of others and to subject the minority to inequality before the law.

Jefferson believed that the American people were capable of self-government, and so he worked with his fellow patriots to put the government into their hands.

In so doing, however, Jefferson did not feel that he was acting only for Americans.

"It is impossible not to be sensible that we are acting for all mankind; that circumstances denied to others but indulged to us, have imposed on us the duty of proving what is the degree of freedom and self-government in which a society may venture to leave its individual members."

More than 200 years after Jefferson and his compatriots began our experiment in free government, the experiment and the duty is still ours.

In fullfilling this duty we may take comfort in the words of the last letter that Jefferson wrote in his life.

Too ill to attend the celebration in Washington of the 15th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, Jefferson, who would die on that anniversary, wrote to the Mayor of Washington that "All eyes are opened, or opening, to the rights of man...The mass of mankind had not been born with saddles on their backs, nor a favored few booted and spurred ready to ride them legitimately, by the grace of God. These are grounds of hope for others. For ourselves, let the annual return of this day forever refresh our recollections of these rights, and an undiminished devotion to them."

Smoking called public health enemy No. One

"Freedom from Smoking" is being added to the list of freedoms enjoyed by many Mississippians.

Over 1,500 Mississippians are now participating in the "Freedom from Smoking" program offered by the Mississippi Lung Association, explained Mrs. Allen Edwards of Indianola, president of the Christmas Seal voluntary health organization.

Smoking has been called public health enemy number one because each year almost 350,000 Americans die earlier than they would if they had never smoked This terrible toll of human life is preventable.

It is important to understand the serious health hazards of smoking in order to fully understand that smoking is a habit that can and should be broken," Mrs. Edwards continued.

A variety of reasons are given for wanting to quit smoking. They include cancer, emphysema, heart and circulatory problems plus wanting to set a good example for children.

There is evidence that quitting smoking - at any age - has a beneficial effect on pulmonary function, said Mrs. Edwards. Unless people are already sick when they quit smoking, their health risk rates greatly improve with time after quitting.

Nine out of ten smokers in a government survey indicated they would like to quit smoking. Mrs. Edwards notes that never starting to smoke is easier than quitting. And the Mississippi Lung Association does offer a plan for kicking the cigarette habit in 20 days, plus a maintenance program to remain a nonsmoker for "life and breath."

Anyone interested in proclaiming independence from smoking can secure this material by contacting the Mississippi Lung Association, Post Office Box 9865, Jackson, Ms 39206 or telephone 362-5453. "Freedom from Smoking" materials are available now. A card or a call is all it takes to receive this life-saving information.

July 4 extravaganza slated at Paul Johnson State Park

South Mississippians will not need to go far to take part in the largest July 4 celebration in the South, the Great American Birthday Party, scheduled to last all day at Paul B. Johnson State Park just south of Hattiesburg.

In its sixth year, this event is the south's largest activity (started during the Bicentennial) still in existance. It annually attracts over 23,000 people to celebrate their nations birthday in a very traditional manner.

"The emphasis is on the family doing things together, and celebrating July 4 as a family unit, whether it be games, entertainment, picnicing, or contests. The family can participate together, for in the family lies the very basis of our American heritage and the strength of our nation." Bud Kirkpatrick, director of the event, said.

The day gets underway around 9 a.m. and last until the closing activity, a gigantic fireworks display over the lake at 9 p.m.

During the event people attending the Great American Birthday Party will have a variety of activities including booths and displays, entertainment, Forest Festival, games, food, rides in a hot air balloon and fireworks.

The Birthday Party is sponsored by the University Civitan Club of Hattiesburg, and is financed by donations from business, industry and individuals in the Hattiesburg area.

A Forest Festival will be part of the days events, beginning at 1 p.m. The Festival is presented by the Mississippi Forestry Commission and features traidtional forest oriented games, events and contests. A unique activity scheduled for the first time during the upcoming birthday party will be the sawdust scramble, an activity where silver dollars are placed in a pile of sawdust and participants scramble within a time limit. In addition to the scramble will be other events including sawing contests, greased pole climbing, plus others.

Hundreds of items will be for show and sale as craftsmen make and present their wares in the areas of ceramics, woodcrafts, flowercraft, needlework and other handmade items.

Clubs, organizations and church groups looking to the activity as a fund raising activity will have dunking booths, displays, information centers, food booths and other activities.

Variety will be the bill of fare with food. Taste tempters will include watermellons, snowballs, hamburgers, hotdogs, baked goods, gumbo, shrimp, cold drinks, ice cream, and the list goes on.

Rounding out the schedule is entertainment on the Great American Stage from 1 p.m. til 8:30 p.m., a hot air balloon, plus other activities.

The public is invited, there is no charge except for items purchased in booths.

"We want the day to be relaxed and that is the reason there is no hard schedule of activities, everyone can set their own pace and enjoy the day," Kirkpatrick said.

boring riverfront land owner; and Phillips Petroleum Co. of Houston, Tex., a company leasing a northern portion of the partnership's property.

Joining the state as defendants is Saga Petroleum Co. of Houston which holds mineral leases for some 600 acres from the state within the southern portion of the Bambini property claim.

The property in question is roughly 2,400 acres bounded on the north and east by Jourdan River, on the south by Bayou LaCroix and on the west by Hwy. 603. I-10 crosses the center of the land area east to west.

Bambini contends it owns the property claimed by the state based on its own professional studies, a 'headlands' consideration in the public trust doctrine and property ownership documents.

Headland claims of streams, lakes and bayous are based on ownership of land by one property owner surrounding an entire waterway.

MONDAY'S PROCEEDINGS
THE SIXTH DAY

Lugene P. Stenum of Biloxi, a surveyor with Advanced Developments, Inc.—a Bay St. Louis engineering firm, explained his involvement in the boundary study conducted for Bambini by ADI and Craben-Thompson and Associates of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

After explaining the use of various types equipment, Stenum noted a March, 1977 survey in the partnership's northern property area near the river.

Under questioning by Ernest Taylor, a Bambini attorney from Jackson, Stenum said the purpose of the 'profile' was to illustrate the MMRC map indicated wetlands in areas well above the mean high tide mark.

Stenum reported several profile surveys were conducted in October-November, 1979 on the Bambini property along the Jourdan north of I-10.

"All three profiles reflect different situations north of I-10," the surveyor said pointing to blue line print graphs.

He explained that National Oceanographic Survey 'benchmarks' and information provided by Paul O'Hargan of Craben-Thompson were used to establish various land elevations.

Stenum reported property elevations in the northern property area 'dropped abruptly' near the mean high water line.

The surveyor said on March 24, 1980 the Bambini study became a 'full-fledged project' involving himself, ADI President Dr. Michael Smith, O'Hargan and two field assistants.

"O'Hargan's firm was responsible for locating the mean high water line and we were responsible for horizontal control (verification of survey marker location)," Stenum stated.

The surveyor described survey activity in several photographs introduced as evidence and reported that O'Hargan was present during all mean high tide surveys.

He noted an iron rod was driven into the ground indicating the mean high water line survey point and a wooden post, placed one foot inland, marked each location.

Stenum said the waterfront survey took some two weeks to complete after April 7, 1980.

He reported ADI's horizontal control work, verifying mean high water survey locations, began on April 21, 1980 by locating National Space Technology Accoustic Buffer Zone boundary monuments at Stennis International Airport.

Stenum said 1822 land section survey points by Henry Washington were found to be irregularly spaced, but noted this is commonly found in South Mississippi due to outdated survey methods.

The surveyor's field notes were entered as evidence as 'proprietary and confidential' documents so they would only be viewed by attorneys involved in both sides of the case.

Taylor stated, "His books show horizontal location of O'Hargan's marks."

Cross examination by Boyce Holleman of Gulfport, Saga's attorney, verified that Stenum established O'Hargan's mean high water survey locations which 'in effect' encompassed bayous and streams in the Bambini property claim.

Holleman then asked Stenum if he could locate a mean high tide mark and if the southern portion of the property was avoided in elevation surveys.

After several objections by plaintiffs' attorneys, Stenum said he could not determine the mean high tide mark and the southern property area 'wasn't avoided' in the elevation mapping.

Holleman took issue with a headline in the Sunday issue of The Sea Coast Echo stating 'State's boundary report still not available to county landowners.'

"The only thing delayed was a meets and bounds description. Somewhere the newspaper has gotten the impression the plaintiff's haven't seen our survey," Holleman said.

Objections by Plaintiffs' attorneys ended Holleman's comments.

Smith was then placed on the witness stand by the plaintiffs to explain his role in the Bambini study.

The consulting engineer reported he was first contacted by Donald Crump, a partnership member, in Dec., 1976 'concerning an encroachment by the state.'

"Based on personal observation of elevations, there appeared to be a conflict (in state and private property ownership)," Smith said.

Taylor asked, "Was there any correlation between the MMRC maps and the state lease descriptions?"

Smith replied, "Yes sir, there was because our estimation of acreage was similar. Our conclusion was that the state leased land based on the MMRC maps."

The engineer explained his firm prepared a property map for Bambini based on old township plats and field survey notes which established the John J. Jourdan claim of 1829. The Bambini land contains a large portion of the old claim.

Smith said Fish Island at the mouth of Bayou LaCroix was included in the Jourdan claim.

The ADI president reported no exception was made for Bayou Enciente, contained within the Bambini property claim, excluding it from the partnership's land boundaries.

He noted that land elevation profiles were only charted north of I-10 because he and O'Hargan estimated marshes in the area were within one foot of the mean high water mark and wanted to verify the low elevations.

When Taylor asked if MMRC had a criteria for establishing a mean high water line, Smith stated, "MMRC said they had no criteria for establishing a mean high water line."

"O'Hargan and I both felt since no criteria was established we made our work as scientific as we could to provide accurate information," he stated.

Smith said it was agreed to place mean high tide markers every 500 feet, but stakes were placed every 300 feet on Bayou LaCroix and 200-foot intervals along the Jourdan north of I-10.

He explained ADI coordinated all aerial photographic work and erected large 'targets' which indicate the mean high water line on aerial photographs.

The engineer reported that aerial photography was conducted with infrared and black and white film at various altitudes.

Smith noted that infrared photos revealed a 'change of colors and vegetation' at the charted mean high water line. He said the vegetation change seemed to follow along most of the mean high water stakes.

Taylor exhibited a normal ground level color photograph showing a close up view of the vegetation change.

Regarding a blue line print of Bambini's mean high water markers, Smith reported, "O'Hargan reviewed our work on Jourdan River and Bayou LaCroix and agreed with our in-

FOURTH CONCERT

The Mississippi ETV Network will carry the National Symphony Orchestra's Fourth of July concert at 9 p.m., Saturday, July 4. Mstislav Rostropovich will be conducting the orchestra from the mall at the base of the U.S. Capitol in Washington. "The Stars and Stripes Forever" and a fireworks display climax the evening, which is expected to be attended by thousands who have traditionally listened to the concert from the grassy area between the Capitol and the Washington monument. This is the first time the concert has been televised.

CHARLIE COMPANY

"The World of Charlie Company," a 1970 CBS News Special program portraying the life of U.S. combat soldiers in Indochina during the Vietnam War, will be telecast on Mississippi ETV at 7 p.m., Saturday, July 4. The program is the second in a weekly series of five, one-hour CBS documentaries to be rebroadcast on public television. Each program includes an update by Bill Moyers. Reported by CBS News correspondent John Laurence, "The World of Charlie Company" was rebroadcast over CBS just three weeks after its premiere due to overwhelming response by viewers and critics alike. Its rebroadcast marked the first time in the history of the network that a documentary was repeated so soon after its initial presentation. Laurence, who was awarded an Emmy in 1968 for his reporting from Vietnam, returned to the war zone in 1970 and lived in the field for nearly three months and filmed the daily experiences of the men of Company C, Second Batallion, Eleventh Cavalry Division, in Vietnam and Cambodia. "Charlie Company" was the first American unit to go into Cambodia in May 1970. The men of "Charlie Company" are seen in combat and in quiet moments.

BUFFALO SOLDIERS

The signing of the treaty at Appomattox Court House in 1865 marked the end of the Civil War, but it was the beginning of the war to settle the American frontier. "Buffalo Soldiers," a program in "The Black Frontier" series, tells this story at 2 p.m., Sunday, July 5, on the Mississippi ETV Network. The half-hour program chronicles the organization and development of the ninth and tenth cavalry and the struggle for respect and recognition that became a private war for the black soldiers, along with their major war of fighting to settle the West.

HISTORY LIVES

Actor Philip Abbott hosts a new public television series, "Hidden Places: Where History Lives," which explores little-known sites that once were important in the history of the American West. The programs can be seen at 5:30 p.m., Sundays, beginning July 5, on the Mississippi ETV Network. The three half-hour programs feature ancient Indian places, Oregon Trail landmarks and colorful mining towns in eight Western states and describe some of the efforts to preserve these sites. The first program, "Ancient Places," takes viewers to the canyonlands wilderness of Utah and to Hueco Tanks in western Texas, two sites where Indian rock art has endured for centuries.

N.O. CUISINE

A special public television program tackles one of American cuisine's fiercest "controversies" when "Hot Stuff: The Restaurants of New Orleans" is rebroadcast at 9 p.m., Monday, July 6, on the Mississippi ETV Network. It was first seen on ETV last November. The one-hour documentary dares to touch a subject gourmets love to argue about: creole cooking and New Orleans eating spots, both fancy and simple. With a hidden mike, "Hot Stuff" catches tourist reactions to the menu for breakfast at Brennan's. It claims that the recipe for Oysters Rockefeller at Antoine's is "none of your business." and it calls chef Gunter Preuss of the Versailles "the new kid on the block." The cameras also go behind the scenes at New Orleans' temples of cuisine. They show the insiders' back door to Antoine's and tell how chef Warren Le Ruth tests a recipe. The program also stops in for a jazz brunch at Commander's Palace. Since the neighborhood restaurants of New Orleans are particularly unique, "Hot Stuff" visits Casamento's where they don't even own a freezer, tastes the fried catfish at Barrow's and gets Frank Mandina's recipe for a Sazerac. Viewers get a glimpse of Texans trying to eat crawfish and cruise across Lake Pontchartrain for sunset at La Provence. And viewers are special guests for authentic Cajun cooking in a home in Lafayette. "Hot Stuff" was produced by Emmy-winner John Beyer of WYES-New Orleans.

PAUL SIMON

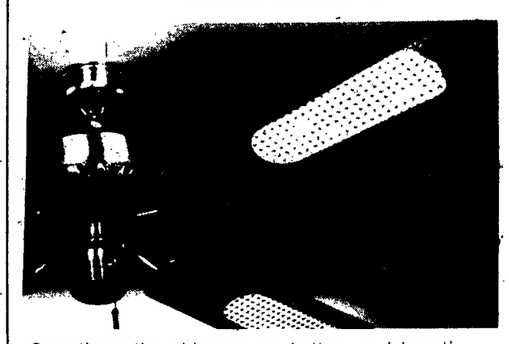

In the sixties it was "Mrs. Robinson" and "Sounds of Silence." In the seventies it was "Fifty Ways to Leave Your Lover." And in the eighties, poet-songwriter-troubadour Paul Simon continues to articulate the images and ideals of yet another generation of fans. A one-hour special program, "Paul Simon," spotlights the singer and his music at 8 p.m., Monday, July 6, on the Mississippi ETV Network. It was first aired on ETV in March. The concert was taped before a capacity audience at the Tower Theatre in Upper Darby, Pa. Starting off with a rousing "Me and Julio," Simon presents a collection of his greatest hits and current favorites including "Still Crazy After All These Years," "One Trick Pony" and "Sounds of Silence."

EXODUSTERS

When the Civil War ended, many blacks realized their bondage had not really been lifted. There were promises of hope from the Carpetbaggers, but reality was a "free" white society governed by white justice. The program "Exodusters" from "The Black Frontier" series focuses on the movement begun by Benjamin "Pap" Singleton to carry the newly freed slaves from their new home and future. One such place was Nicodemus, Kansas. "Exodusters" can be seen at 10 p.m., Wednesday, July 8, on the Mississippi ETV Network. A series of flashbacks features the spirituals of "Voices, Inc.," protraying the experiences of the ancestors of current residents of Nicodemus.

terpretation."

Smith also noted his company prepared the Bambini property legal description.

TUESDAY TESTIMONY
THE SEVENTH DAY

Charles W. Granger of Slidell, area manager for T.L. James Construction Co. of New Orleans, reported his role in I-10 fill dredging operations in the late 1960's as project field engineer.

The manager reported he assisted in directing the work utilizing two dredges—one rerouting and widening Bayou Enciente to accomodate a larger dredge and a the second machine which dug two lakes providing I-10 road bed sand.

Under cross examination by Mack Cameron, an assistant State Attorney General, Granger said he did not 'notice that much' an ebb and flow of the tide in Bayou Enciente when conducting soil borings several years preceeding the dredging work.

Granger explained that two lake areas were formed within the Bambini property claim as a result of the dredging operations.

"Material wasn't available along side the roadway to meet state road specifications," he stated.

When asked if an ebb and flow of the tide was sighted in the lake areas during dredging operations, the project engineer said water did flow into the area as the sand was removed.

The engineer said he was responsible for determining dredging locations based on his soil borings.

After a short recess, Granger reported the sand was found 11-13 feet underground and dredging depths ranged from 38 feet to 45 feet.

Granger said he 'discussed' with Fritz Harris, Bambini property manager, about not dredging into heavily wooded areas.

"Harris made a statement that he'd like to protect the timber. But nobody seemed to care what we were doing otherwise," Granger stated.

The engineer said out of four possible spoil areas, for undesirable dredged material, a location near the river just south of the I-10 right-of-way was utilized.

He noted all the spoil sites were about the same elevation.

Holleman began questioning Granger about soil boring charts, but presiding Chancellor William L. Stewart of Gulfport, Division One—Eighth Chancery Court Division of Mississippi, temporarily suspended questioning and asked both men to move away from each other and 'calm down.'

Granger then explained dredging was conducted in specific locations 'because there was sand material in there,' but agreed the dredged areas followed the tree lines.

Under questioning by Joel Blass of Pass Christian, a Phillips Petroleum attorney, Granger said the larger second dredge had to 'pull through' mud utilizing anchors at high tide in the mouth of the river to reach the work site upstream.

The engineer noted the previous dredging work in Bayou Enciente was needed to move in the larger dredge with a tugboat, but even with the channelization work the dredge had to be 'pulled through' the waterway.

He said while work was underway an attempt to move a 20-foot barge in adjacent Long Gar Bayou failed because the stream was not wide enough.

Granger explained a wier (a type of dam) was placed in the spoil area levy to allow water return to the river. He noted this was not the wier later installed by Bambini.

The engineer said some silt material entered the Jourdan which was later dredged from the river channel and placed in the spoil area.

Granger reported the dredge had difficulty exiting the lake areas and stated, "...we had to dig some more to get out."

L. Arnold Pyle of Jackson, a Bambini attorney, asked for a recess until the next day to correct errors in the legal description of the Bambini property claim previously submitted as evidence.

WEDNESDAY MORNING
THE EIGHTH DAY

When the trial began Wednesday, Pyle requested a conference in the judge's chambers.

After one hour and 10 minutes attorneys from both sides returned to the court room and Taylor submitted for evidence a corrected property description.

Smith returned to the witness stand to complete a report of his work.

He said surveys and computer calculations found 2,447.81 acres in the Bambini property claim.

The company president also explained procedures in reproducing an enlarged map of the outlined MMRC wetland area within the Bambini claim.

Smith said he did find an 'encroachment' into the property which was indicated by a red line.

Holleman objected to the use of the word encroachment. His objection was sustained by Stewart who noted the the word usage 'is a question of semantics.'

"We've taken a great deal of abuse in publicity regarding this case...," Holleman stated.

Taylor pleaded that the state's mineral leases were granted based on the MMRC maps, but Stewart maintained his ruling.

Smith said the acreage outlined by the MMRC maps as wetland areas in the Bambini property claim totalled 601.7 acres.

The ADI president said the cost of his company's services for Bambini to date total more than $150,000 including $100,000 in survey expenses.

The state's expert witness, George M. Cole—president of Florida Engineering Services Corp. of Tallahassee, was expected to begin testimony Wednesday afternoon or Thursday morning.

FACING CROSS EXAMINATION—Lugene P. Stenum, left, of Biloxi and surveyor of Advanced Developments Inc. of Bay St. Louis, Monday explains work techniques to Attorney Boyce Holleman of Gulfport in an ongoing Gulfport trial primarily involving the State of Mississippi and Cinque Bambini Partnership of Hancock County. The firm is seeking to establish its property claim in the action. Stenum participated in a land survey conducted for Bambini and Holleman is representing Saga Petroleum of Houston, Tex., which has joined the state as a defendant. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Knights' Notes

Pere Le Duc Council No. 1522 has slated a heavy schedule of activities and events throughout the month of July.

The Council will hold its first monthly meeting Monday, July 6 at 8:30 p.m., a half hour later than unusal. Please note this special meeting on your calendar.

Next weekend, July 10 - 12 is Our Lady of The Gulf Parish Fair.

We are counting on the Knights' support to help us run the beer and snowball concessions as well as the games.

Please volunteer your time as the Council supports the parish.

More details will be discussed at the meeting Monday night.

Kelvin Schultz will organize the snowball concession and is seeking volunteers to run the stand and donations of sugar to make the syrup.

Those willing to contribute should contact Kelvin.

Jim McCarthy will be the head of the beer concession and also seeks the aid of the Council members to pledge their assistance throughout the fair.

All Knights intereated in working at the fair at the two concession stands for the Bingo games are urged to attend the July 6 meeting.

Once more the Knights have designated a clean-up day at St. Mary's cemetery. On Sunday, July 19 the Knights again ask that the parish join them in this final clean-up of the parish cemetery.

The Knights are calling for your help: Please come as they prepare the cemetery for All Saints Day later this year.

Something must be done about the upkeep now in order that the grounds be ready in the fall.

Bring your own tools. Please remember that this is your cemetery and the Knights cannot do it alone.

The Council thanks Norton Haas, Mrs. Azalie Hale, and Miss Ruth Cazeneuve for their donations to the first St. Mary's clean-up.

The officers for the 1981-82 term will be installed on July 24, at 8 p.m. at the KC Hall.

All Knights and their guests are invited to the installation and dinner. Please contact Grand Knight Bob Hubbard for reservations.

The Knights of Columbus hold Patriotism as one of their founding principles. This Independence Day weekend Pere Le Duc Council reminds all of this principle and urges everyone to practice it.

From Pere Le Duc Council, Have A Happy Fourth of July!!

The Knights ask that you continue your prayers for the recovery of Phil Kergosien.

NORDA eyeing AV contracts

The Navy has announced initiation of detailed studies to determine the feasibility and economy of converting Audiovisual Services at NORDA to contractor performance.

Currently there are three civilian personnel performing those functions that will be studied. Decisions to convert the functions to contract will be made only if the detailed studies indicate that they can be satisfactorily performed by the private sector and that significant savings of tax dollars can be achieved.

If such decisions are made, Congress and the public will be notified according to normal procedures.

Civilian employees affected will receive assistance from federal placement programs, including relocations, to obtain transfer or reassignment to other positions in the Department of Defense or to other federal agencies, at government expense, if necessary.

State's gasoline prices remain nation's highest

Gasoline prices in Louisiana and Mississippi declined for the second month in a row, according to information gathered in AAA's Fourth of July Fuel Gauge Report.

Since the Memorial Day report last month, AAA reports that the average price of fuel in Louisiana dropped by 1.1 cents a gallon to $1.366.

In Mississippi, the average price of $1.451 reflects a decrease of 1.6 cents a gallon. In May, decreases of approximately one cent a gallon were reported in both states

Fuel remains generally available in Louisiana and Mississippi and throughout the United States. Motorists traveling for the Fourth of July Holiday should find ample fuel supplies along major travel routes and in cities.

Mississippi's prices, while continuing to decline, are still the highest in the nation, a trend shown in the past several Fuel Gauge Reports.

The lowest prices in the nation were reported from Ohio, where the average cost per gallon was $1.301. The average price of gas in the United States was $1.374, a decrease of 1.1 cents since last month.

A growing difference between the price of full-service and self-service prices is giving motorists a chance to take advantage of a competitive market. Average self-service prices were cheaper by 12 cents in Louisiana, 6 cents in Mississippi and 8 cents on an average throughout the United States.

AAA reminds motorists that while savings can be realized at the self-service pumps, proper maintenance through regular inspections of fluid levels, tire pressure, belts and hoses can also help save money and add to travel convenience and safety.

The breakdown of prices is:

Highway Patrol promises maximum holiday effort

The Mississippi Highway Patrol will mount a maximum enforcement effort on the Fourth of July holiday in an effort to curb highway deaths and accidents.

Patrol Chief Donald Butler said days' off, leave and vacation for personnel had been cancelled and that all officers in Traffic Enforcement would be on patrol during the upcoming long weekend

Butler said he was also considering assigning additional patrol officers to late night duty where traffic flow is heavy to offer additional service and enforcement in an effort to reduce accidents.

The 78-hour holiday period will begin at 6 p.m. Thursday, July 3 and will end midnight Sunday, July 5.

During the Fourth of July holidays last year, 13 persons were killed in Mississippi as a result of eleven traffic accidents.

For the current year, Butler said, Traffic deaths are running 16 percent less than for the same period in 1980 on roads under jurisdiction of the state patrol.

He urged all drivers to obey laws, to be courteous, and to drive defensively.

Blindness prevention group urges total ban on fireworks

How many eyes will fireworks destroy this Fourth of July?

Reported injuries from fireworks rose over 40 percent last year according to the Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness.

In hospital emergency rooms alone an estimated 9,400 people were treated for pyrotechnic injuries in 1980. Of that total, 1,600 were to the eyes.

In Mississippi a post-New Year's Eve spot check at one hospital emergency room and one physician's office revealed that 5 people lost their vision to fireworks — mainly bottlerockets.

It is hard to imagine what the overall report would have been if every physician and emergency room could have been questioned.

The reporting nurse at the hospital said, "I worked until 3 a.m. helping pick glass out of children's eyes and in one case had to then watch as the parents were told their child's eye had to be removed.

Why do they let them have those things! This happens every holiday season."

The Mississippi Society urges all parents to either ban fireworks all together or directly supervise their use.

The best possible solution is fireworks being used only in licensed public displays. They are explosive devices, and their victims are usually the innocent by-standers.

Observe the Fourth of July with fun and relaxation. Don't let fireworks rob you or your child of the chance to see tomorrow.

The Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness is a non-profit, voluntary health agency dedicated to the elimination of unnecessary blindness. For information on prevention write: Prevent Blindness, 115 Broadmoor Dr., Jackson, MS 39206.

Turner Broadcasting splits two for one

Turner Broadcasting System, Inc. stockholders heard an optimistic outlook from Chairman of the Board R. E. (Ted) Turner at their recent annual meeting in Atlanta.

"We have an incredibly bright future," Turner told the approximately 100 persons attending the meeting.

In his remarks, Turner said that the corporation's sole cash generator, WTBS, is expected to generate approximately $20 million in operating income on revenues of $60 million in 1981, as opposed to half these amounts in 1980. He said that WTBS should be in 25 percent of the nation's television households by the end of the year.

As for the corporation's other properties, Turner said that the Cable News Network will be in close to nine million homes by the end of the year, and will approach a break-even cash flow in the fourth quarter.

WTBS and Cable News are carried on Hancock Cable's Ch. 7 and Ch. 10, respectively.

And on the subject of the Atlanta Braves, he said that the Major League baseball strike should not have any significant effects on the cash flow of the corporation.

Turner noted that, on a consolidated basis, the corporation is nearing a break-even level of cash flow, and he anticipates the generation of a positive cash flow commencing in the fourth quarter.

In response to questions, he stated that, as future cash flow will allow, he intends to enter into production of original programming for the SuperStation, and expansion of the news gathering capability of the Cable News Network.

In closing, Tuner stated that the corporation's negotiations for a new, revolving credit facility have not been completed. However, he expressed optimism that satisfactory arrangements would be concluded in the near future.

In addition, they agreed to split the corporation's stock 2 to 1, increasing the authorization from 16 million to 32 million shares, and decreasing the par value from 25 cents to 12½ cents.

Cuevas horses take three in Oak Downs competition

(Special to The Sea Coast Echo)

PEARL RIVER, La.—Three horses trained by Donald Cuevas of the Kiln won races Sunday at Oak Downs.

And another Hancock County horse won the top thoroughbred race of the day.

The largest program in several months at the Pearl River track was accompanied by a shrimp boil. Oak Downs will be closed Sunday in observance of the Independence Day weekend.

Jeff Peterman, 12-year-old jockey from Lyman, Miss., held the hot hand Sunday by winning seven times on the 19-race card.

Cuevas-trained horses visiting the winner's circle were Alwaysonthego, owned by Hancock County's David Ladner, in the three-furlong second race; Cuevas' own Fast Home Run in the 350-yard seventh; and Model's Cupid, owned by Kenny Ray Ladner of Lakeshore, in the 350-yard 11th.

Peterman rode three of the Hancock County horses to victory.

Curlie's Boy, owned by Cedric (Curlie(Ladner of Necaise Crossing, was an easy winner in the six-house, five-furlong race. Ralph Shubert of New Orleans was aboard the winner as Curlie's Boy posted a solid time of 1:05.91.

Tammy's Man, owned by the Jimmie Magee family of Franklinton, won his third straight race and remained undefeated by turning back another good two-year-old, Hy Rebel Go, in the 400-yard ninth.

The best time for three furlongs was :37.64 recorded by Court At Night, owned by veteran Hattiesburg horseman Elmo Harless, in winning the fourth race.

April's Injun, owned by John Paul Amacker and trained by Jessie Lee, both of Poplarville, was an easy winner in the 350-yard 12th, the quarterhorse feature race, against Miss Tips.

The closest race of the day came in the 400-yard 10th as Two Bar Jr., owned and trained by Ricky Slaydon of Slidell, nosed out Mr. Go Go.

In a 400-yard mule race, Levy, with owner Billy Bahm in the irons, took an easy victory over three opponents.

Wildlife Federation chief urges cooperation with Reagan forces

Despite the Reagan Administration's apparent hostility to the environmental movement, conservation groups must try to cooperate with that administration, according to Dr. Jay D. Hair, the National Wildlife Federation's new chief executive officer.

"We must establish a record of cooperation," Hair told the Conservation Round Table of Washington, D.C. in his recent first public appearance after assuming command of the nation's biggest citizens conservation group on May 1.

"I am a firm believer that cooperation, instead of confrontation, is the best way to the resolution of difficult problems. We may well find that we have more areas of agreement than disagreement if we can develop a constructive dialogue with the Reagan Administration."

Hair's call for cooperation was part of a five-point "Survival Strategy for Conservationists" he outlined before the capital conservation community. Other points included:

—Conservation groups must work more closely together, "even if it hurts." He cited last year's Alaska Lands Act as a case where cooperation worked.

—They must choose their issues carefully, concentrating on such big bills as the Clean Air and Clean Water Act renewals and "not trying to save every one-acre urban park."

—To hold their own with President Reagan, "an extremely effective communicator," they must sharpen their communications skills.

—They must activate their members at the "grass roots" level to convince the Administration that environmental values are "crucial components of quality of life standards expected by the American people."

As examples of some early administration actions which threaten important national environmental goals, Hair cited the cuts in the Reagan budget for the Environmental Protection Agency, the Interior Department, and the President's Council on Environmental Quality, and the move to lease oil drilling sites off the coasts of Oregon and California, in areas previously designated "least acceptable" by the Interior Department.

The 1980 election, he said, was not a referendum on environmental protection. "The American people want regulatory reform," he said. "They want economy in government. They want inflation reduced. But they want none of these things at the expense of the environment."

To illustrate this point, Hair, who holds a PhD in zoology and is a former professor of zoology and forestry at North Carolina State University, said that the Federation's most recent poll of its members revealed that 62 percent out of the 55,323 respondents felt there was "too little" environmental regulation. "From this and other polls — which show repeatedly that most Americans still consider themselves to be environmentalists — it is clear that the environmental movement, far from dead, is alive and well throughout America," Hair emphasized.

Memberships and revenues of the major environmental groups have surged since President Reagan's election, he pointed out. Contributions to the NWF were up "35 percent during the first quarter of 1981 over the first quarter of 1980. Memberships were up 14 percent, and total revenues up almost 20 percent. Other organizations report similar gains."

This strong grass roots support will make it that much easier for conservation groups to approach the Reagan Administration, Hair explained. In addition to trying to work with the Administration, he said the NWF will embark upon a new era of "corporate detente" by attempting to sit down with resource users to try and understand each other's viewpoints. "Open conflict," he said, "will be joined only as a last resort."

Safety consciousness necessary in leisure

During these hot summer months, many ways can be found to enjoy leisure time, but relaxing hours actually may be more hazardous than those spent on the job.

"Whatever leisure activity you choose, whether it be swimming, boating, skiing or perhaps fishing, learn to do it competently," says Dannie Reed, farm safety specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"Have the proper equipment and clothing for the activity, and make sure children have proper training and supervision," Reed advises parents.

"A car loaded with family members and gear deserves extra care while driving," Reed says. "Observe the 55 mile per hour speed limit. Stop for a break if you begin to tire, or let someone else drive."

Alcohol also figures prominently in accidents. Don't drink while involved in such activities like boating, fishing, hunting and camping. "If you do drink, do so in moderation and never to the point of impairment when taking part in activities requiring normal alertness and skill to avoid injury," Reed adds.

"Don't overdo it. Choose activities that are right and safe for you, then stop before you are exhausted to avoid unnecessary helath and accident risks," he says.

Babe Ruth League Results, June 24-29

Lacoste 10
Coastal 8

Lacoste used pitcher Milas Harvey to good advantage and earned a win over Coastal. Harvey started, pitched 2 innings was relieved by Mike LeGross, then resumed mound duties and earned the win. Harvey helped his cause by blasting a powerful double in the second inning. Mike Noto went 2 for 4, Warren Seymour 1 for 4, and LeGross 1 for 3.

Mike Ladner, Coastal pitcher earned the loss. Ladner collected 1 hit in 3 at bats, Jimmy Head 1 for 3, and Wayne Karl was 1 for 1.

Alcan 13
Seals 1

Mark Seuzeneau pitched a no hitter against Seals and whipped them soundly in this abbreviated 4½ inning game. This was due to the fact that Alcan was more than 10 runs ahead at the end of the regulation game. Robert Whavers, Donald Graham, Gary Fricke and Jeffrey Smith each had 1 hit.

Seals pitching duties were shared by left handed Ronnie Lyons and Darren Smith, with the loss going to Lyons.

Friday night's action was called off due to a sudden thunderstorm just prior to game time. These games are going to be played Wednesday, July 1, which will officially end the season.

Lacoste 11
Seals 4

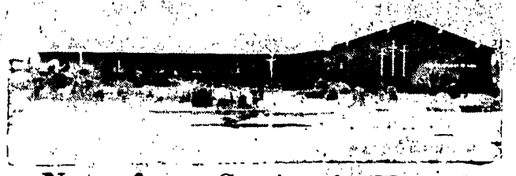

Milas Harvey pitched 5 innings and was credited with the Lacoste win. Mike Noto led the hits with 3 for 4. Jimmy Thriffiley was 2 for 4. Mutakabir Shabazz, Milas Harvey, Eddie Clark and Kenny Cunningham each had 1 hit.

Bert Von Antz earned the Seals loss. John Bosarge shared the mound duties. Seals three hits were by Ronnie Lyons, Darren Smith and John Bosarge.

Alcan 1

Coastal handed Alcan their first loss of the season and thus marred an otherwise perfect record. This perhaps was the best ball game of the season. Mike Proulx was the winning pitcher. The Proulx brothers Mike and Tim accounted for 3 of the 4 Coastal hits. Tim was 2 for 3 and Mike was 1 for 4. Mike Ladner had the other hit for Coastal.

Jeffrey Smith got the loss even though the 13 year old ace allowed only 4 hits and struck out 14 batters. Alcan had more hits, but just could not manage to punch the runs across the home plate. Gary Fricke was 2 for 3, John Henry was 2 for 3, Smith 1 for 2 and Mark & Michael Suezeneau 1 hit each.

Waveland Dairy Queen opening set

Kay and Lisa Gurley and Rosemary Taylor, all of Diamondhead, have successfully completed a two-week management training course at Minneapolis-based International Dairy Queen, Inc.

The three will own and operate the Dairy Queen Brazier store at US-90 and Nicholson Ave. in Waveland expected to open this month.

During the course, they and 16 other store operators from the United States and Canada were instructed on all facets of operating a "Dairy Queen-Brazier" store.

Subjects emphasized included product preparation, sanitation procedures, employee management and financial management.

The Gurleys and Taylor are three of the more than 3,800 people who have graduated from IDQ's national training center since its inception in 1968.

With more than 4,800 Dairy Queen stores in all 50 states and ten foreign countries, IDQ is one of the world's largest retailers of fast food and frozen dessert products.

Smith death ruled suicide

Pass Christian police have ruled the Saturday death of George R. Smith III, 22, of Pass Christian was the result of a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head.

Harrison County Coroner Ed Little said Smith and a friend, David LeBlanc, were climbing stairs at Smith's flat in Royal Pines Apartments, Pass Christian, when Smith apparently fired the fatal shot.

The sheriff's department conducted trace-metal tests to determine Smith had fired the gun, a .45 caliber handgun.

Easter Seal Society honors bank volunteers

A special awards presentation was conducted recently for volunteers of Gulf National Bank in Bay St. Louis recognizing their dedication to the Hancock Chapter of the Gulf Coast Easter Seal Society.

Accepting an award for Gulf National was Sherlyn Breland of Bay St. Louis who has served as 'Mail and Neighbor-to-Neighbor' treasurer for the society during a recent 1981 Campaign.

"Gulf National Bank has worked with the Easter seal programs since 1976, and through their volunteer spirit have encouraged the residents of Hancock County to support the many direct service programs offered by the society," says Scottie Maddox, society regional representative.

"As a community, grass root organization, Easter Seal believes in working with neighbors who can relate to other neighbors who may need a helping hand to overcome their disabilities," he reports.

"Working within the guidelines of direct service, and with the many programs available to Hancock residents, Easter Seal continues giving vital hospital equipment, hearing aids, orthopaedic appliances, speech therapy, and many other services to the people within the county," Maddox explains.

"With the help of other volunteer organizations in the county, Easter Seal hopes to enact a school scoliosis screening program in the 1981-1982 school year, and set up a hospital loan equipment closet within the Bay St. Louis area sometime during the 1982 campaign year, he revealed.

Breland presented Gail Price of Biloxi, assistant representative for the society, a check in the amount of $1,290.

"These monies were donated by county residents and will be used to give direct service for 'handicapable' men, women and children regardless of their disabilities," Maddox says.

"Anyone needing help from Easter Seal should call Gulf National or the Easter Seal regional office in Biloxi at 435-4505," he suggests.

Teacher group vows opposition to pay changes

The Mississippi Association of Educators has vowed to oppose any attempts to weaken laws dealing with local supplements to teacher salaries.

Last week State Superintendent of Education Charles Holliday said he would propose such legislation during the 1982 legislative session.

Jerry Brumfield, MAE president, stated, "Before 1980 local school districts had the discretion to adjust state and local funds for teachers' salaries. Mississippi teachers were angered by the fact that they seldom received the pay raise as passed by the legislature. MAE will not tolerate efforts by local school districts to circumvent legislative intent."

Prior to legislation in 1980, local school districts could adjust the amount paid teachers by the state as long as the aggregate local supplement was not reduced.

The result was that many teachers did not receive the total amount of salary increase as passed by the legislature. In 1980, the legislature required school districts to maintain the supplement of each teacher.

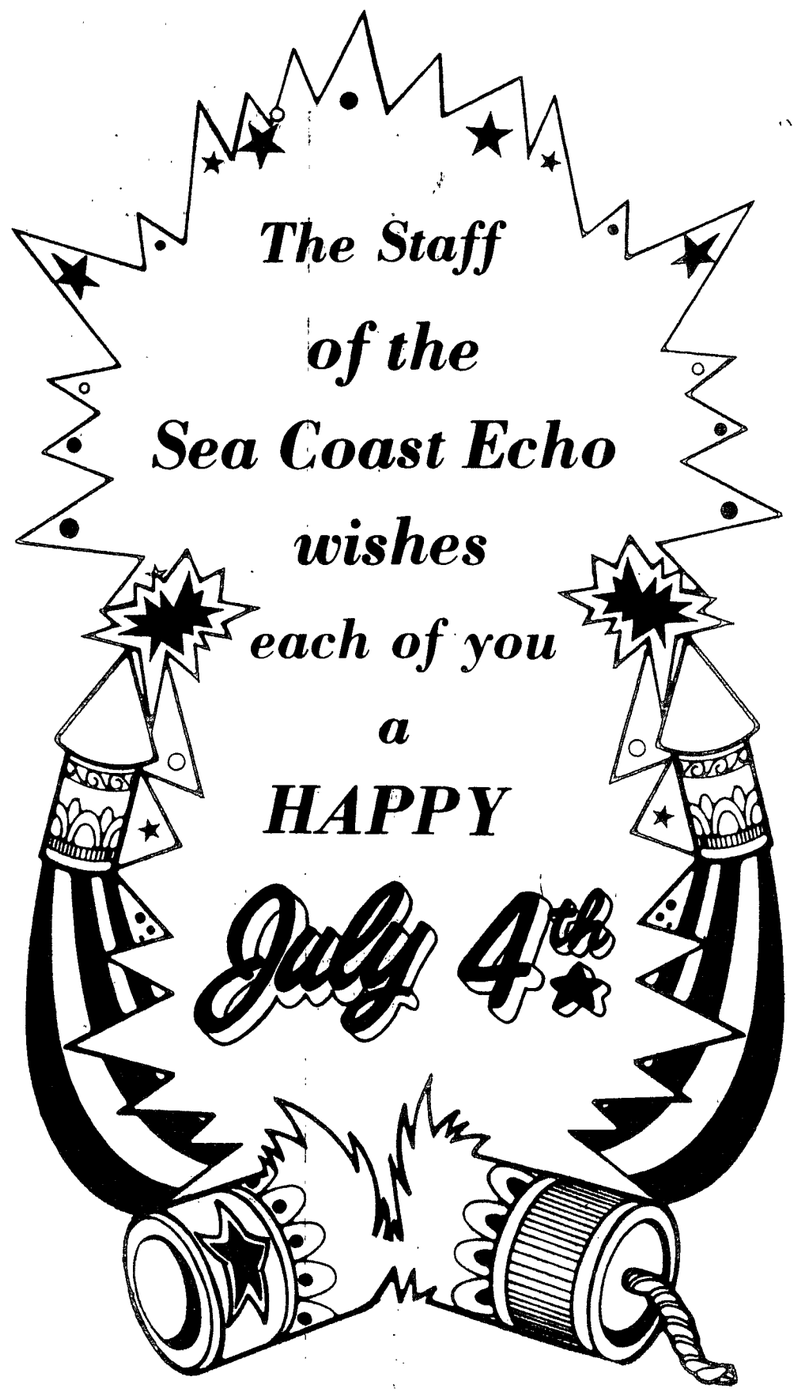

Brumfield said, "Once again this proposal of the State Superintendent shows the lack of concern toward teachers that has been exhibited over and over again by the state superintendent's office. It is tragic that when more than two-thirds of the state's school districts have not met their maximum financial responsibilities we are talking about cutting back on local supplements to teachers. This hurts the education of children when many of our good teachers, who are poorly paid and are facing further reductions, leave the classroom."

LSU FRESHMAN—Brian Clifford Lewis, former resident of Bay St. Louis and a 1981 graduate of Bay Senior High School, is enrolled at Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge with major course of study technical drafting. He is son of Clifford Lewis of Port Allen, La. and Mrs. Carolyn Ladner of Bay St. Louis. He will be residing with his father in Port Allen during his course of study.

Researchers seeking survival methods for shrimp fishermen

By JAMES BOOTH
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

BILOXI—Steady increases in the price of diesel fuel have forced many Gulf Coast shrimp fishermen out of business, but research may help those fishermen who have somehow managed to hold out.

The problem for most shrimp fishermen centers on the rising prices of fuel in the past eight years. Fishermen have faced a 900 percent increase in the price of their fuel, but the price of their shrimp has not risen at the same rate.

Tommy Schultz, owner and captain of the Biloxi shrimp boat 'Reva Rose,' says shrimping was once a profitable way to earn a living.

"In 1973, fuel was 11 cents a gallon. In six months it went to 21 cents a gallon. The price of shrimp was about 80 cents per pound, and that was fine until 1976," Schultz says.

"Then the cost of fuel ran wild. It went to 70 and 80 cents and on to the price it is today," Schultz says. "The price of shrimp has held the same. That is what is killing us."

The rising costs of production in getting the shrimp to market have been too great for some fishermen. They are taking their losses and getting out. In an attempt to help those still holding out, research is under way on board the Reva Rose.

Dr. David Veal, head of the Sea Grant Advisory Service of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, says they are trying to produce a comprehensive fuel management program that could keep some fishermen in business.

"We're trying to classify the activities of the commercial fishing industry," Dr. Veal says. "We want to determine how much time is spent fishing, going from port to port or between fishing areas.

"We are using special computer equipment to monitor the use of diesel fuel 24 hours a day so that fuel consumption can be measured at every phase of the shrimping process," he says.

"Obviously, fuel consumption rates are different when going from the port to the fishing area than while actual trawling is taking place," Dr. Veal adds.

"This fuel consumption program could make the difference between survival and going out of business for shrimp fishermen," Dr. Veal says. "Fuel costs for the fishing industry have gone from $10,000 or $12,000 a year to $80,000 or $10,000 a year per vessel in the past decade.

"When you take a vessel that will take on 20,000 gallons of diesel fuel a month and a fixed resource to fish from, the difference in staying in business and not being in business is the ability to manage fuel consumption."

The computer often can help fishermen save more than a hundred gallons of fuel a day without any measurable loss in production.

"We can save a lot of money just by cutting down on engine power," Captain Schultz says. "We're going to have to cut down on running from place to place and stick closer to home. If we move our operation, we're going to have to move it to an area we decide on and stay there," Schultz adds.

"We used to be able to run back and forth with our shrimp, but we can't anymore. We have to unload at the closest place for the best possible price we can get," he says.

"When shrimp are available, we are going to have to put in every single day we can in the Gulf to make it pay for us. We used to work in the winter, but now we can't," Schultz says.

Marginal production practices must be cut altogether, or fishermen can be prepared to go out of business. That is a hard, but accurate reflection on the state of today's shrimp industry. But the results of the computer's work are showing up in fuel dollars saved every day.

"One of the observations that we have made already is the difference in efficiency between two different nets," Dr. Veal explains.

"Typically a Gulf boat will use two nets. In the last two or three years, there has been an trend to go toward what are called 'quad trawls,' two small nets pulled on each side of the boat," he adds.

"Although we are pulling four nets, in many cases we actually have less fuel consumption and a larger catch," Dr. Veal says. "The difference is four or five gallons an hour. This four or five gallons an hour for 24 hours a day is a lot of money in a year's time," he says.

Saving fuel is the primary object of the computer's work, and it seems to be doing the job well.

Captain Schultz says that if he had the money he'd buy it. "That is how much I think of it," he says. "It will show us where we are making errors. Correcting these errors can save fuel and money."

Just how much money can be saved on fuel by following the results of the monitor's research?

"With the information we are gaining from this and good fuel management techniques, an individual vessel owner can save as much as 15 percent of his fuel bill," Dr. Veal says. "At one dollar a gallon, we are talking about $10,000 to $15,000 a year."

The Gulf Coast shrimp industry still faces many problems, and the research on board the Reva Rose still has to be distributed to shrimpers.

Others may not be as receptive as Captain Schultz, but a much higher degree of professional management will be required to survive in the shrimping business.

Southern expects record mini-quarter enrollment

Reservations for the University of Southern Mississippi's Mini Quarter continue to come in as the Department of High School and Junior College Relations prepares for the sessions which are held throughout July.

"Last year we had over 2,300 students attend Mini Quarter," said Billie Allen, director of High School and Junior College Relations "and this year we're expecting more."

Mini Quarter is an orientation and pre-registration period for all new freshmen and undergraduate transfer students coming to USM in the fall. Its purpose is to introduce new students to the atmosphere, environment and people of USM.

A "must" for new students, Mini Quarter includes pre-registration for fall courses, testing for various academic class levels, orientation to the campus and organizations, a comprehensive review of fees to be paid in the fall, academic counseling, credit evaluation employment information and a look at social life at USM. An added plus is one hour credit given for attending the session.

"It provides new students a chance to become acquainted with our campus, members of our faculty and staff and many of the young men and women who will be their classmates," Mrs. Allen said.

Mini Quarter sessions scheduled my major fields of interest are:

July 6-7, for College of Liberal Arts, College of Education and Psychology, School of Home Economics and University Athletes.

July 9-10, for College of Business Administration, College of Fine Arts and School of Library Services.

July 13-14, for College of Science and Technology, School of Nursing, Honors College and School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

July 16-17, for College of Liberal Arts, College of Business Administration, School of Library Services and College of Education and Psychology.

July 20-21, for School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, College of Fine Arts, College of Science and Technology, School of Nursing and School of Home Economics.

One-day sessions will be held July 23, 28 and 30, for all majors. Undecided majors go with Liberal Arts.

There is a 300 limit for the overnight sessions which cost $25 and a 200 limit for the one day sessions which cost $20.

Parents are invited to attend special sessions which are planned to run concurrently with the one and two day student sessions. A special adult session, which is limited to students 25 years old and over, will be held from 5-9 p.m. July 24 and will cost $15.

"We have a limited number for each session and they are being filled up fast," said Mrs. Allen. "I urge new students to get their reservations in as soon as possible."

USM MINI QUARTER—Billie Allen, director of the University of Southern Mississippi's Department of High School and Junior College Relations, looks over Mini Quarter reservations with Jim Cook of Hattiesburg. Cook is a facilitator for USM's orientation and pre-registration for new students to be held throughout July.

Musical, comedy to highlight UNO summer theater program

A comedy by Neil Simon and a Rogers and Hammerstein musical will comprise the 1981 summer theatre program of the University of New Orleans department of drama and communications in July.

Simon's hilarious "Barefoot in the Park" will be presented July 8 through 11, followed closely by Rogers and Hammerstein's "Carousel," July 16 through 21. As in the past, the UNO music department will participate in the musical production.

"Barefoot in the Park," which will be directed by George Wood, is one of the funniest and most successful contemporary stage plays. It chronicles the adventures of a pair of newlyweds as they set up housekeeping in an antiquated New York apartment.

"Carousel," a poignant story of love in the here and hereafter, was first performed in 1945. Dr. Raquel Cortina is music director and Lou Dezseran, director of the UNO presentation.

The two productions mark the seventeenth year of summer theatre at UNO and the eighth year in which the departments of music and of drama and communications have collaborated on a musical production.

" 'Barefoot in the Park' was still playing to standing-room-only audiences during its original New York run, when UNO's department of drama began a summer repertory series of classic comedies in 1965," recalls Dr. Harlan Shaw, department chairman. "That first summer, Rostand's 'The Romantics' and Moliere's 'Tartuffe' and 'The Doctor in Spite of Himself' were performed.

UNO summer productions were predominately English and French comedies until 1968, when the first American plays were performed, William Saroyan's "The Beautiful People" and "What Price Glory" and the little produced early American play, "Hurricanes" by Bronson Howard, Dr. Shaw says.

The 1969 production of Horton Foote's "The Midnight Caller" was memorable because it opened the day of the first moon walk. Jim Ragland, UNO professor of drama and communications, was the director and was sure no one would show up. About 35 people did.

"We set up TVs for people to watch during the intermission," says Ragland.

"The folksy show had a scene with an actress sitting on a porch, looking at the stars and singing, 'I See the Moon and the Moon Sees Me.' The moon walk occurred just after the play ended so everyone watched it on TV and the actress led the audience and cast in a rendition of 'I See the Moon...'"

The early 70's was a time of transition for the department. A new performing arts building was under construction and the department established an informal format, cabaret Theatre, in the University Center. Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" and Oscar Wilde's "A Woman of No Importance" were the first summer performances in 1973 in the new Performing Arts Center.

In 1974, the music and drama and communications departments collaborated on their first musical production, "110 in the Shade." Ohter musicals have been "Man of La Mancha," "Dames at Sea," "Damn Yankees," "Kiss Me Kate," "The Fantastiks" and "Little Mary Sunshine."

For ticket information for the summer's productions call 286-6317.

Southern theater schedules reported

Great repertory theatre has become an established part of the summer term at the University of Southern Mississippi, home for 10 weeks of the Southern Arena Theatre (SAT) company.

The 10-member cast is composed of USM students and students from other universities throughout the nation. The company, presently in classes and rehearsing, will perform three plays in nightly rotation beginning July 17 and running through Aug. 8.

The three plays to be presented this year are: Moliere's classic satire "Tartuffe"; Neil Simon's "The Good Doctor," a clever adaptation of Anton Chekov's stories and Noel Coward's "Hay Fever" considered by many to be his best comedy.

The plays will be presented on July 17 and 18 and every Tuesday through Saturday thereafter through Aug. 8. This is the fifth season for the SAT.

Tickets are general admission $7.50 for season tickets and $3.50 single show, student and senior citizens $4.50 and $2.25. For additional information call the Theatre Department at 266-7225.

Book Review

Hart Shorn

The University of Mississippi's Bureau of Governmental Research has published a two-volume collection of the inaugural addresses of Mississippi governors since the state's inception.

The first volume begins with the inaugural address of David Holmes, governor when Mississippi was admitted to statehood in 1817, and ends with the address of Robert Lowry, governor for eight years before the adoption of the Constitution of 1890, which is still in effect.

"This was a period of growth and challenge for the state," said Dr. Robert McArthur, director of the Bureau of Governmental Research at Ole Miss. "During this time, Mississippi government was organized under three Constitutions in 1817, 1832 and 1869 and the people in the state faced the upheaval of war and reconstruction."

The period also was noted for frequent disruptions in governmental procedures and record-keeping, causing some research problems in compiling the volume, Dr. McArthur said. Bureau staff members found 21 addresses for the 32 men officially listed as serving as governor during that time.

"Inaugural addresses found in the Journal of the Legislature are reproduced exactly as they appear there, while speeches copied from original handwritten gubernatorial papers and contemporary newspapers were only edited to standardize punctuation," Dr. McArthur said.

The record-keeping and stability in governors' terms improved somewhat in the period from 1890-1980, covered in the bureau's second volume collection of inaugural addresses.

"The second volume contains 23 addresses beginning with Gov. John Marshall Stone in 1890 and continuing through the current term of Gov. William Winter," said Dr. McArthur.

"Although their prose is not always faultless and though the governors may express deep-seated prejudices abhorrent to many readers, these addresses serve to express the public mood at crucial phases in modern Mississippi history."

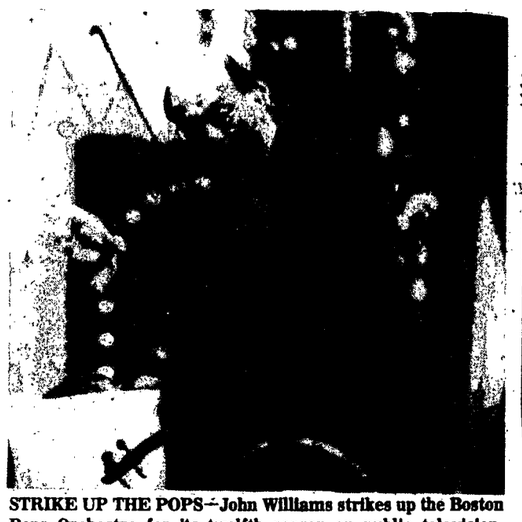

He said that Mississippians, especially those interested in the history and politics of the state, could do extensive analysis based on information included in the compilations.

"These speeches represent the governors' dreams and programs at a time which is generally viewed as being the highpoint of their careers," said Dr. McArthur.

"For instance, from these addresses you can see similarities between the rhetoric and concerns of governors in the 1840s and 1850s and those in the 1940s and 1950s, especially in regard to the state's relationship with the federal government."

The inaugural addresses research project is part of the bureau's on-going program to make information available to Mississippians on the government and history of the state, Dr. McArthur said.

Copies of the two-volume set of inaugural addresses are available through the Bureau of Governmental Research at The University of Mississippi, University, MS 38677.

STRIKE UP THE POPS—John Williams strikes up the Boston Pops Orchestra for its twelfth season on public television. "Evening at Pops," 1981 season, premieres at 8 p.m., Sunday, July 5 on the Mississippi ETV Network with special guest Buddy Rich.

Public Education: America's Strength is NEA's annual convention theme

A Fourth of July Special Report

PUBLIC EDUCATION: AMERICA'S STRENGTH

What keeps America strong?

That's a perfect question for the Fourth of July, and this year, in Minneapolis, over 10,000 Americans have an answer: public education.

The 10,000 — Americans from every corner of the country — are spending their July 4 at the 119th Annual Meeting of the National Education Association, the biggest and the oldest education group in the United States. They've made "Public Education: America's Strength" their theme for 1981.

That theme is actually as old as our nation. For more than 200 years, the greatest Americans have always recognized the importance of education to America's strength and freedom.

"Knowledge is in every country the surest basis of public happiness," George Washington told Congress in 1790. "To the security of a free Constitution it contributes in various ways: by convincing those who are intrusted with the public administration that every valuable end of government is best answered by the enlightened confidence of the people, and by teaching the people themselves to know and value their own rights."

But even before President Washington addressed himself on "teaching the people," and even before the Constitution was adopted in 1789, the generation of 1776 had committed federal government support for public schools.

In the ordinance of 1785 the Continental Congress decreed that a lot be reserved in every township "for the maintenance of public schools" and, in the ordiance of 1787 that established the Northwest Territory (Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and eastern Minnesota), Congress reinforced that concept.

Down through the years Presidents have often initiated education programs, using the prestige of their office in the effort. In private correspondence, public addresses and messages to Congress, the record is filled with presidential interest in the advancement of public education.

Many remember Thomas Jefferson's famous statement, "If a nation expects to be ignorant and free in a state of civilization, it expects what never was and never will be."

Less well known is an excerpt from a letter Jefferson wrote to a Virginia friend: "I am now entirely absorbed in endeavors to effect the establishment of a general system of education in my native state..."

Jefferson went on to cite the need for "elementary schools which shall give to the children of every citizen, gratis, competent instruction" as part of a "triple basis" for education that would also include "colleges within a day's ride" and a state university.

Abraham Lincoln, in an 1832 address to his home county folk in Illinois, made a similar point.

"For my part," said Lincoln, "I desire to see the time when education — and by its means morality, sobriety, enterprise and industry — shall become much more general than at present."

Education is, he told his listeners, "the most important subject which we as a people can be engaged in."

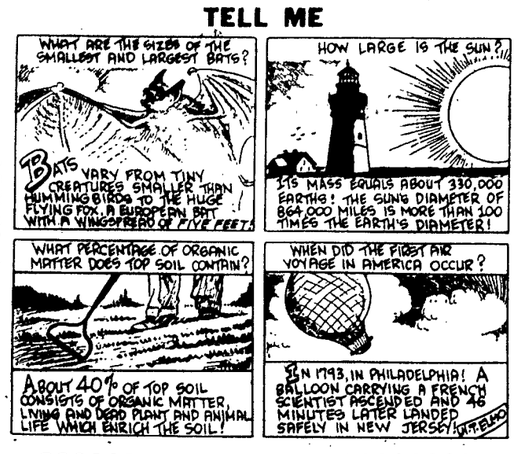

Theodore Roosevelt, in a 1905 address to the National Education Association, declared: "The children, wherever they have been born, wherever their parents have been born, who are educated in our schools side by side with another, will inevitably grow up having that sense of mutual sympathy and mutual respect and understanding which is absolutely indispensable for working out the problems that we as citizens have before us."

Teddy Roosevelt's contemporary, Woodrow Wilson, couldn't agree more.

"Without popular education," Wilson once wrote, "no government which rests upon popular action can long endure."

Added Franklin Roosevelt in a 1935 message to teachers published in the NEA Journal: "It is your duty, no less than mine, to look beyond the narrow confines of the schoolroom; to see that education provides strength, and security for those institutions we have treasured since we first established ourselves as a nation and shall continue everlastingly to cherish."

Stiff new welfare fraud penalties effective July 1

The Mississippi Legislature enacted legislation that provides for means of assuring program abusers that the Department of Public Welfare intends to and can take legal sanctions against those who abuse aid programs intended for the needy.

The act becomes effective July 1.

The bill combines several criminal statutes that pertain to welfare fraud into one statute. It also increases the penalty for welfare fraud from a misdemeanor with a maximum of one year in the county jail and a $1,000 fine for the first offense to the possibility of a felony with a three year term in the state penitentiary and a $10,000 fine.

The legislature also made it a crime for a person to sell, purchase or alter a food stamp or medicaid card; to knowingly sign a false application for the replacement of benefits claiming they were not received; for an employee to misappropriate any assistance; for any person, in contract with the agency, to knowingly submit a false bill for services rendered to a recipient of benefits.

To assist the Department of Welfare in the detection of the acts mentioned above, the legislature created a Fraud Investigation Unit within the agency.

The Fraud Investigation Unit is responsible for conducting investigations and aiding the agency in the detection of fraud or abuse of any program by clients, employees and persons with whom the agency has contracted.

The unit has access to records and information, from government and private sources, that enables the investigators to verify client information.

The investigative uni forwards information abou possible criminal violations t the appropriate prosecutin authorities.

If requested by the prosecutor, the unit assists in the prosecution of any cases referred to prosecutors.

The legislature granted counties the authority to hire assistant prosecutors to prosecute cases involving fraud in welfare programs.

The Department of Welfare now has the authority to enter into contracts with counties to subsidize the cost of hiring special assistant prosecutors to assist in the prosecution of persons who defraud programs.

The criminal portion of this legislation applies not only to persons who defraud welfare programs but also any federal or state funded assistance programs.

McPhail to head new USM program

The University of Southern Mississippi is establishing an Institute for Educational Leadership directed by Dr. James H. McPhail, presently chairman of the Department of Educational Administration and Supervision.

McPhail, who charged positions effective July 1, sees his new job as that of bringing together schools with resources available at USM.

In his 19th year at USM, McPhail has been chairman of the Department Educational Administration for 13 years, during which time 214 doctoral students have graduated. Many graduates remain in the state in public education.

"I will be working closely with Mississippi's public school personnel, especially superintendents and principals, putting them in touch with experts on the USM campus who can be of help," he said. Some of the responsibilities of the new post will include organization and supervision of research, field studies, projects and workshops.

During the fall of the 1981-82 school year McPhail will be visiting other universities which have established similar centers. The schools will include the University of Oregon, George Washington University, Harvard and Boston University.

McPhail, who has experience as a public school teacher, coach and principal, received his baccalaureate and masters degrees from USM and his doctorate from Boston University.

USM team evaluating teacher accreditation

About 150 faculty members at the University of Southern Mississippi are involved in a self-study of teacher education.

The study, which may be several volumes when completed, will be presented to a visiting team from the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) for validation.

Dr. Gary Rush, Assitant Dean of Education and Psychology is chairman of the study which includes faculty members from 44 teacher education programs at USM.

The teacher education programs are in the Colleges of Education and Psychology, Liberal Arts, Fine Arts, Science and Technology and the Schools of Library Service, Health Physical Education and Recreation, Home Economics and the Graduate School.

This the first year USM campuses in Gulf Park and Natchez will be accredited directly by NCATE. For the first time the visiting team will evaluate facilities, curriculum and faculty at the two branch campuses.

USM has maintained its accreditation since 1954, and according to Rush, accreditation is becoming increasingly difficult to attain.

"Accreditation indicates a degree of quality which is important since most states require teachers to be from accredited programs before they can teach."

Over 1,650 students are in teacher education programs, from which USM graduates 300 teachers annually.

Rush said the study committee was on schedule for its Fall 1982 visit by the NCATE team.

Dean's List students announced by USM

Students at the University of Southern Mississippi Gulf Park and Jackson County campuses who made the Dean's List for the 1981 Spring Term include:

BAY ST. LOUIS: Carolyn Patricia Gib Crull, Kathleen T. Dolan Dwight, Marsha Frances Garziano, Cheryl L. Nybo Gibson, Connie A. Demoran Heitzmann, Martha A. Gehrke Merrigan, Linda C. Hughes, Marvin Lee Paul.

KILN: Sandra Marie Desangles.

WAVELAND: Vickie Necaise, Margie A. Kemph Church, Mary Hansford Wilcox.

PASS CHRISTIAN: Armour Leroy Jarrett, Freda M. Everett Deckert, Susan B. Cooley Breland, Regina Ann Carson, Carolyn Knape Smith, Shirley A. Jackson Sessum.

Polymer science stipends available

The availability of scholarships in polymer science to high-ability undergraduate students at the University of Southern Mississippi has been announced by Aubrey Lucas, USM president.

The value of freshman scholarships is based on ACT scores and varies from $250 to $1,000 per year. The value of upper class scholarships are based on GPA scores. Passing students may retain their scholarship until graduation.

However, the value of each scholarship will decrease if grade averages are not maintained.

In contrast, the value of each scholarship will increase if the grade average improves.

The scholarships are available on a first acceptance basis and are available to junior college transfer students as well as to entering freshmen.

Fellowships with much larger stipends are available to graduate students in polymer science.

Further information is available from Prof. Roger Hester, P.O. Box 10076, University of Southern Mississippi, Hattiesburg, Miss. 39401.

ENERGY ANSWERS

from Mississippi Energy Extension Center

Q. How many gallons of water does my washing machine use? How much does it cost to operate?

A. The number of gallons your machine uses may be listed on your washer or in your owner's manual. If you can't find the information in either place, use the representative figures supplied by Frances Fortenberry, assistant to the state leader of the Home Economics Department, Cooperative Extension Service: extra large load, 40 gallons; large load, 34 gallons; medium load, 27 gallons; small load, 20 gallons.

As to how much your machine costs to operate, that depends on many variables. The amount of water it uses is one.

Others are the cost of electricity in your area, the water temperature you choose, the length of the washing cycle and what kind of water heater you have. (Heating water for wash cycles can account for as much as 85 percent of the energy needed.)

The "average kilowatt hour usage for a washer is 108. You can multiply 108 by the cost per kilowatt hour for electricity in your area to come up with an approximate cost.

Q. Should I turn my air conditioner off during the day?

A. One of the most important things you can do to save electricity is to use your air conditioner only when you really need it. If the members of your family are out of the house most of the day, turn it off when you leave and on when you return.

You can buy a simple timing device to turn it off and on for you if you're likely to forget. A timer can be set to turn the air conditioner on about 30 minutes before you get back — long enough to help cool the house, but not long enough to destroy your energy budget.

Q. I'm interested in getting a recycling program started. How can I begin?

A. Call Bob Kochtitzky at the Center for Human Development in Jackson, (601) 366-8467. The Center has a small grant from the state Department of Energy and Transportation to produce 12 recycling workshops in the state.

Kochtitzky is operating the Governor's Recycling Program in Jackson and is setting up a network of recycling stations to allow people in outlying areas to reclaim waste materials, too.

For more information, or to get an answer to your energy questions, contact the toll-free Governor's Service Line, 1-800-222-7622; the Mississippi Energy Extension Center, (601) 325-3152; or, in Jackson, the Department of Energy and Transportation, (601) 961-4733. Questions may also be mailed to the Energy Center, P. O. Box 5406, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Russians to attend Faulkner conference

Top scholars from throughout the Soviet Union will come to The University of Mississippi next year as part of the annual Faulkner and Yoknapatawpha Conference.

Soviet participation in the 1982 Faulkner conference will be coordinated by the University's Center for the Study of Southern Culture.

As American coordinator, the center will arrange the date and site of the Soviet-American venture, establish the form it will take and select scholars from the United States to participate.

The center will work in cooperation with the project's Soviet coordinator, the Gorky Institute of World Literature of the Soviet Academy.

In addition to the Russian scholars who will attend the August 1982 conference, funded in part by the National Endowment for the Humanities, other international scholars will be invited to the conference.

"The Russians are very familiar with Faulkner's work," Dr. William Ferris, director of the Center for the Study of Southern Culture said. "Indeed, Faulkner is probably the most widely read American author in Russia, with the possible exception of Mark Twain.

"Also, there are striking similarities between Russian writers and writers from the American South. This is evident in the common emphasis on tradition and the past, and in the strong sense of attachment to and love for the land that runs through many Russian and Southern novels."

Ferris added that Faulkner and other Southern writers including Eudora Welty have been influenced by Russian writers, and that the planned Faulkner conference will create a unique opportunity to examine the common elements of Russian and Southern literature.

The project is sponsored by the American Council of Learned Societies and the USSR Academy of Sciences Commission of the Humanities and Social Sciences.

The bilateral commission sponsors conferences and exchanges of research and data between the Soviet Union and the United States.

Since the commission's first meeting in 1975, more than 80 projects have been completed involving 500 Soviet and American specialists in such fields as anthropology, history, literature and regional planning.

Dr. Ferris said that the Center for Southern Studies was asked to coordinate the Soviet-American Faulkner project because of its involvement in the University's annual Faulkner and Yoknapatawpha Conference as well as its success in handling previous international exchanges.

Last year, the Center hosted a number of international visitors, including a group of faculty and students from Joann Wolfgang Goethe University in Frankfort, Germany and representatives from 19 countries participating in the Center's "Regionalism in America" workshop during a trip sponsored by the U.S. International Community Agency.

The Center's International Council in composed of 66 scholars from 25 countries throughout the world.
